Photoshop has three versions: CS, CS2 and CS3. The name CS stands for Creative Suite. The CS2 and CS3 versions were released around 2000, which made the software more capable than its predecessor. However, they also had problems — they were very buggy, and were frequently updated to correct the issues. Adobe said that the issues were due to compatibility problems with the Mac OS system. In 2005, Photoshop was renamed to Photoshop CS, and then in 2007, a new version of the program was released. It was a completely new version of Photoshop, and the name became Photoshop CS3. In 2010, Adobe released Photoshop CS4 with new features and enhanced capabilities. Photoshop has its own separate application known as Photoshop Elements, which can be used to edit raster images. What's New In Adobe Photoshop 2020?

More than 2,000 refugees settled in Thailand have escaped Phnom Penh and other Cambodian cities by sea this year, fleeing the ongoing hostilities with neighbouring Thailand, local authorities said. They included people from five different countries, including Eritrea, Ethiopia, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh and Myanmar, said Maha Sombun from the Department of Refugee Reception Centre (DRC) in Chamchuri district. She said the number was unprecedented, with the exodus comparable to refugees fleeing the Myanmar military over the past few months. Many of the refugees came to Thailand in search of jobs, with some hoping to become "boat people", or seek refugee status. But most of the ones who were rescued were not willing to be resettled in Thailand, as many were not familiar with the country's system, Sombun said. "We mostly assist those who refuse to be resettled in Thailand," she said. "We persuade them that it is better for them to return to their countries of origin." Somaly, a refugee from Laos who fled via boat to Thailand, said that he had been dealing with people from other countries for several years. He said he had helped another 36 refugees recently, despite the risks. "The situation in Cambodia is very dangerous," Somaly said. "I have no clear idea of what is going on in Cambodia." Boat people The majority of refugees from Cambodia have fled the civil war between the government and the Khmer Rouge, he said. "Many people are forced to flee from their villages because of the fighting, which is taking place almost everywhere. The Khmer Rouge is winning, they have control of the country," he said. Many of the refugees have settled in border camps such as Chani in Preah Vihear province or Srepok in Pursat province. Mahila Aow Phasal, a Cambodian who lives in Australia, is also helping to support refugees, especially children, living in the border camps. This year, she helped support 33 children living in the Kampong Cham refugee camp alone. "Unfortunately many of the children live with AIDS and malaria," she said. "They need help to be treated and to go to school." Aow Phasal said there was not enough help from both the UN and the Australian government, which she believes is due to the strained relations between Cambodia and the UN
